Halfway there!

The big day is now just three months away, taking the countdown days into double figures rather than triple, and meaning that we really should start sorting the day's arrangements out!

We've been delighted with the response to our invitations and web site so far, from the excellent proportion of invitees who've said they're coming, to the kind comments about the quality of the site and its content, which we were rather expecting more to be described as 'over the top' and 'scary' ☺

So thanks to all those who've responded - and if you haven't yet done so, there's no time like the present, since we're starting to think about table plans and the like now.

Jukebox jury

As readers of our dlog (or indeed anyone who's logged in to the zoolyweds site and seen the home page in the past couple of weeks) will be aware, the only church involved in our wedding is the broad church of our musical tastes, and as such we'd like suggestions from all our guests as to what we could play, either at the ceremony or during the evening when we have many hours in which to play things in the background.

Disclaimer: you may be the jury, but we're the judges ☺ Rest assured, though, that all suggestions will at least be considered!

To make a suggestion, you can visit the web site below and use the 'Comments' form, or, if you don't wish to be publicly associated with your suggestion, e-mail, call or write to us (contact details below)!

A Question of transport

How many guests does it take to fill a coach?
Not quite as many as it did when we last mentioned the wedding coach.

In the light of several people confirming that they don't want to take the coach, and an additional handful not coming to the wedding at all, we recently took the decision to downgrade the coach to a 53-seater. This means that it's possible that up to eight people could be disappointed, so we'll have to allocate seats on a first-come, first-served basis from now on.

That said, we would like to take this opportunity to remind everyone that you should be strongly considering taking the coach if you're staying at any of our recommended hotels/hostel in London, travelling to/from King's Cross/St. Pancras stations, or heading into London from our own area (picking up from Hextable).

The festivities won't finish until midnight, so other public transport may be thinning out, although trains from King's Cross continue until about 1am so coach passengers should make these without too much trouble. Above all, though, we want the journey to be as much fun as the rest of the day, so we need you on board with us to help fulfil that aim!

So, please give serious consideration to the coach and if you decide in its favour please sign up while seats last!

Coach information can be seen at www.zoolyweds.co.uk/coach.php (login required).

Waiting list

If you've been waiting for the wedding list to be completed, you'll be pleased to hear that we'll be signing it off as final at the end of this month (June). This will give you over two months to make a selection, which should be plenty of time even if you order from a really incompetent online shop ☺

The list has more than doubled in length since we sent out the invitations, but we know it's still not as long as it should ideally be. It's been proving hard to find enough appropriate items we're in need of, but the plan is to include a type or two of vouchers we can request from anyone who doesn't like the look of anything on the list.

So, please check www.zoolyweds.co.uk/weddinglist.php at the end of June for the final list (or sooner - you might find something you'd like to get us on it now).

(Usual disclaimers apply about this whole business of apparently demanding presents not sitting comfortably with either of us but us not really seeing any other way around receiving duplicate/unwanted items from kind, well-meaning guests!)

File-sharing

Thanks for reading this news update. If you have a friend or relative who is also attending the wedding but hasn't registered an e-mail address with us, please feel free to share this document with them!

See you all soon,

Paul and Edith
