

zoolyweds

Paul and Edith's wedding

zoolyweds news update – 27 August 2005

In this news update:

- Remember, remember, the third of September
Gunpowder, treason – or not
- Second site
It's no over-site
- Cap-it-all punishment
That's jest about it

Remember, remember, the third of September

For this final newsletter before the big day, we thought we should run through a few key reminders that you may have missed amid the mass of previous newsletters.

- If you're travelling on the coach, please make sure your mobile number is up to date if you have one, or you've taken ours if you don't.
- If you're travelling on the coach from Hextable, please aim to arrive at Paul's parents' house at 12.30. We'll be leaving their house at 12.45 so that we have time to get down to the bus stop where the coach will be and pull away at 13.00. If you're late, we won't wait, as they say on the budget airlines!

- If we're picking you up in London, look at the photo of the coach on the web site so you know what you're looking out for. Pick-up times and locations are also on the web site. www.zoolyweds.co.uk/coach.php (login required).
- If you want to join in only part of the two-hour zoo tour, please print a tour map, if possible, so you know where to look for us around the zoo. We will have some maps with us on the day but if you can bring your own you'll guarantee yourself a copy!
www.zoolyweds.co.uk/zoo.php (login required)
- If you've got us a present (thanks!) and are seeing us before or after the day, or for instance at Paul's parents' house before getting the coach, please could you give us the present then? The fewer that end up at the zoo, the fewer will need carrying across it, storing, and loading into the coach!

And a couple we haven't mentioned before, but are worth mentioning:

- If you're not going to the zoo by coach, please try to be there by 14.30 if you're coming on the zoo tour, or 16.30 happycouple (at) zoolyweds (dot) co (dot) uk

at the latest if not. Turn up to the Prince Albert Gate (see the tour map for exact location, but it's nearer the main car park than the main zoo gate is if that helps), give your name to the security attendant and head for the Mappin Pavilion, perhaps using a zoo map you've printed from our site!

- If the weather is bad on the day, we'll still do as much zoo-touring as possible. If you see rain forecast, please bring an umbrella and/or suitable attire if you want to join us!

Second site

So once the wedding is over, so is www.zoolyweds.co.uk, right? Wrong.

The zoolyweds post-wedding web site is ready for launch!

After the wedding, the zoolyweds web site will magically more than double in size and become open to all. You'll be able to read and look at loads of materials relating to the wedding day, ceremony, speeches, reception etc., as well as looking at and sharing photos with other guests.

Basically there's just more information and material than you can begin to imagine, and it'll be well worth a visit.

Also, because it's open to all, all those people who have been giving you funny looks when you've told them you're going to a wedding at the zoo can give you even more funny looks when you forward them the web site address and they gawp in astonishment at the minutiae of our special day! Everyone's a winner.

The new site will launch some time during the evening of the wedding day, probably at 17.30 (right after we're married).

Cap-it-all punishment

Just when you thought the headlines couldn't get any worse, I somehow manage to cap it all with that one.

Thanks to everyone for putting up with these increasingly awful headlines as they've infested your mailboxes over the past three months.

Thanks also for putting up with a few technical glitches resulting in double and even triple helpings of dodgy headlines, which really don't get any better with repetition.

We hope you've enjoyed these newsletters, and thanks again for reading them!

We'll see you all in a week's time.

Paul and Edith

Right, that's 36 dlog posts, six newsletters and two web sites finished. Better start thinking about the wedding now...